I. INTRODUCTION

Plaintiff David Armando Martinez’s First Amended Complaint (FAC) (Dkt. No. 41) against Robinhood Crypto, LLC and Robinhood Securities, LLC (collectively “Robinhood”) should be dismissed for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. Mr. Martinez’s FAC cites inapplicable sections of the United States Code, and it consists of conclusory allegations that are insufficient to form a basis for a valid claim for relief.

Alternatively, Robinhood requests that Mr. Martinez’s claim be compelled to arbitration and for these proceedings to be stayed in accordance with the parties’ written arbitration agreements.¹

II. FACTUAL BACKGROUND

A. The Parties

1. Defendants Robinhood Crypto, LLC and Robinhood Securities, LLC

Robinhood provides commission-free trading and other security brokerage services and financial services to self-directed retail investors. Customers sign up for Robinhood by accessing Robinhood’s website or downloading the app. All applicants are required to submit an application through either Robinhood’s website or mobile app. (Kincaid Decl. ¶ 2.)

¹ Courts have permitted motions to compel arbitration to be brought through FRCP 12, or simultaneously as a FRCP 12 motion. See, e.g., Balen v. Holland Am. Line Inc., 583 F.3d 647, 656 (9th Cir. 2009) (affirming district court’s grant of defendant’s motion to compel arbitration and dismiss under FRCP 12(b)(3)); MRI Scan Center, LLC v. National Imaging Associates, Inc., No. 13-60051-CIV, 2013 WL 1899689, at *2 (S.D. Fla. May 7, 2013) (“courts generally treat motions to compel arbitration as motions to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction under Rule 12(b)(1)”); Palko v. Airborne Express, Inc., 372 F.3d 588, 597-98 (3rd Cir. 2004) (“[o]ur prior decisions support the traditional practice of treating a motion to compel arbitration as a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted”).

1 2. Plaintiff David Armando Martinez

2 Plaintiff David Armando Martinez has held an account with Robinhood
3 since February 26, 2020. (Kincaid Decl., Ex. 1.) As a part of his application to open the 4 account, Mr. Martinez was required to click a button on his computer or mobile device
5 screen, equivalent to a signature, acknowledging that he would be bound by Robinhood's
6 customer agreements. (Kincaid Decl. ¶ 4, Ex. 2 at ¶ 1.)² The Robinhood customer
7 agreements that Mr. Martinez electronically executed include, or incorporate, a pre-
8 dispute arbitration clause. (Kincaid Decl., Ex. 2, § 39; Ex. 3, § 16.)

9 Notwithstanding the pre-dispute arbitration clauses, Mr. Martinez filed a 10 complaint in the District Court for the Central District of California, commencing this 11 action. (Dkt. No. 1.) Mr. Martinez filed his FAC on August 3, 2022. (Dkt. No. 41.)

12 3. Five Star & Socius, Inc.

13 Five Star was named as a plaintiff in Mr. Martinez's original complaint.
14 (Dkt. No. 1, p. 3.) Five Star is not named as a plaintiff in the FAC. (Dkt. No. 41, p. 3.)
15 Accordingly, the docket for this case indicates that Five Star was terminated as a plaintiff
16 upon the filing of the FAC on August 3, 2022.

17 B. Meet and Confer Efforts

18 Robinhood's counsel met and conferred with Mr. Martinez on August 18, 19 2022, by email and telephone, regarding the defects that Robinhood believes exist with 20 Plaintiff's FAC, and regarding the parties' arbitration agreements. (Aref Decl. ¶ 2.)
21 Mr. Martinez was unwilling to discuss Robinhood's view that the FAC fails to allege 22 facts sufficient to state a claim, he refused Robinhood's arbitration demand, and he 23 concluded the conversation by telling Robinhood's counsel to "go ahead" and file a
24 motion to dismiss and ask the Court to compel arbitration. (Aref Decl. ¶ 3.)

25
27 ² The Robinhood Crypto Customer Agreement (Kincaid Decl., Ex. 3) includes 28 slightly different wording regarding electronic acceptance, but is substantively identical.

1 III. FIVE STAR AND SOCIUS, INC. IS NOT A PLAINTIFF

2 In the original Complaint, Five Star is named as a plaintiff. (Dkt. No. 1.)
 3 Five Star is not named as a plaintiff in the FAC. (Dkt. No. 41, p. 3.) Therefore, Five 4 Star is no longer a party to this action.³ Five Star's termination as a plaintiff is
 5 acknowledged on the docket for this case, effective August 3, 2022. Robinhood
 6 respectfully requests that the Court formally recognize the termination of Five Star as a 7 plaintiff in its order on these motions to avoid any uncertainty or future dispute on the 8 subject.

9 IV. THE COMPLAINT FAILS TO STATE A CLAIM 10 FOR WHICH RELIEF CAN BE GRANTED

11 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure (FRCP) 8(a)(2) requires that a pleading 12 present a "short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to 13

14 ³ As a rule, "an amended pleading ordinarily supersedes the original and renders 15 it of no legal effect." Crysen/Montenay Energy Co. v. Shell Oil Co., 226 F.3d 160, 162
 16 (2d Cir. 2000). "An amendment under Rule 15 may be used to drop a party." Judge
 17 Virginia A. Phillips & Judge Karen L. Stevenson, Federal Civil Procedure Before Trial, 18 California & 9th Circuit Editions, Ch. 8-F, 1386 (Rutter Group, 2022). "The fact that a 19 party was named in the original complaint is irrelevant; an amended pleading supersedes
 20 the original." Hal Roach Studios v. Richard Feiner & Co., 896 F.2d 1542, 1546 (9th 21 Cir. 1990). Thus, because Five Star is not named as a plaintiff in the FAC, as a matter
 22 of law, Five Star is no longer a plaintiff in this action.

23 Another reason that Five Star is not a plaintiff in this action is that it has never 24 appeared in this case.

25 Only individuals may represent themselves pro se. No
 26 organization or entity of any other kind (including 27 corporations, limited liability corporations, partnerships,
 28 limited liability partnerships, unincorporated associations, trusts) may appear in any action or proceeding unless represented by an attorney permitted to practice before this court under L.R. 83-2.1.

L.R. 83-2.2.2. Mr. Martinez purported to file the original complaint on behalf of himself and Five Star. (Dkt. No. 1.) Because a corporation may not represent themselves pro se, Five Star has never appeared in this action via the original complaint (Dkt. No. 1) or the FAC (Dkt. No. 41).

1 relief.” FRCP 9(b) provides that a party alleging fraud “must state with particularity the 2 circumstances constituting fraud or mistake,” while “[m]alice, intent, knowledge, and 3 other conditions of a person’s mind may be alleged generally.”

4 FRCP 12(b)(6) provides that a defendant may move to dismiss a pleading
5 for “failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted.” Therefore, a pleading
6 that does not satisfy the requirements of FRCP 8(a)(2) or 9(b) is subject to dismissal
7 under FRCP 12(b)(6). Dismissal is proper under FRCP 12(b)(6) where there is either a 8 “lack of a cognizable legal theory” or “the absence of sufficient facts alleged under a 9 cognizable legal theory.” Balistreri v. Pacifica Police Dept., 901 F.2d 696, 699 (9th Cir.
10 1988).

11 Mr. Martinez’s FAC is entirely conclusory and fails to assert a claim that is 12 plausible on its face. Although Mr. Martinez identifies six claims for relief in the caption 13 of his FAC, the body of the FAC does not appear to assert all six claims. Further,
14 Mr. Martinez primarily identifies specific code sections in those parts of the FAC
15 concerning jurisdiction and venue, but he does not explain how any code section cited
16 would provide the basis for a claim. Mr. Martinez alleges that Robinhood “in some way
17 committed some or all of the tortuous actions (and constitutional violations) complained 18 of in this action,” but he does not identify the actions he believes Robinhood committed 19 or did not commit. (Dkt. No. 41, p. 3.) Mr. Martinez alleges that Robinhood engaged in 20 “unconstitutional” acts, without identifying any provision of the Constitution that 21 Robinhood violated and without stating how any provision of the Constitution was 22 violated. (Dkt. No. 41, FAC at pp. 3, 7.)

23 As a result, Robinhood is unable to discern whether FRCP 8(a)(2) or 24 FRCP 9(b) applies to each purported claim for relief; therefore, Robinhood addresses
25 both standards in turn below.

A. The FAC Fails to Comply with Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 9(b)

Apparently as a basis for jurisdiction, Mr. Martinez identifies “Rule 10b-3,” which concerns securities fraud. (Dkt. No. 41, FAC at p. 2); however, Mr. Martinez fails to satisfy the standard for pleading fraud or mistake. Additionally, Mr. Martinez does not identify the claims for relief that allegedly implicate securities fraud.

Claims brought under section 10(b) of the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934 must meet the particularity requirements for pleading fraud or mistake. In re Brocade Communications Systems, Inc. Derivative Litigation, 615 F. Supp. 2d 1018, 1034 (N.D. Cal. 2009). To comply with the FRCP requirement that fraud be pled with particularity, a plaintiff must: (1) specify the statements that the plaintiff contends were fraudulent, (2) identify the speaker, (3) state where and when the statements were made, and (4) explain why the statements were fraudulent; allegations that are conclusory or unsupported by factual assertions are insufficient. Gissin v. Endres, 739 F. Supp. 2d 488, 500 (S.D.N.Y. 2010). “Conclusory allegations of law and unwarranted inferences are insufficient to defeat a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim.” In re Verifone Securities Litigation, 11 F.3d 865, 868 (9th Cir. 1993).

Mr. Martinez does not identify any specific fraudulent statements, any speaker(s), where and when the statements were made, or explain why the statements were fraudulent in connection with any of his claims for relief. Therefore, the claims in the FAC that could be interpreted as asserting securities fraud should be dismissed.

B. The FAC Fails to Comply with Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8(a)(2)

“[A] plaintiff’s obligation to provide the grounds of his entitlement to relief requires more than labels and conclusions, and a formulaic recitation of the elements of a cause of action will not do.” Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007) (internal quotations and alterations omitted). Although FRCP 8(a) does not require “detailed factual allegations,” it “demands more than an unadorned, the-defendant-unlawfully-harmed-me accusation.” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2008). A

1 sufficiently pled claim must be “plausible on its face.” Id. “A claim has facial 2 plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the 3 reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged.” Id.

4 For purposes of a motion to dismiss, allegations of fact are taken as true and 5 are construed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party. See Newdow v.
 6 Lefevre, 598 F.3d 638, 642 (9th Cir. 2010). However, a court must distinguish between 7 the pleading’s allegations of fact and its legal conclusions. See Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 675.
 8 A court “should not give legal conclusions the assumption of veracity.” Id. at 678. The 9 court must decide whether the pleading’s factual allegations, when assumed true,
 10 “plausibly give rise to an entitlement to relief.” Id. at 679. The court may not consider 11 material beyond the pleadings other than judicially noticeable documents, documents 12 attached to the complaint or to which the complaint refers extensively, or documents that 13 form the basis of the claims. See United States v. Ritchie, 342 F.3d 903, 908 (9th Cir.
 14 2003).

15 Mr. Martinez’s FAC is entirely conclusory, lacks a cognizable legal theory,
 16 and lacks sufficient facts to establish that he is plausibly entitled to relief. Therefore, it
 17 is impossible to draw a reasonable inference that Robinhood is liable for any alleged 18 misconduct and the FAC should be dismissed.

19 1. First Claim for Relief – “Negligence in the Securities”

20 Mr. Martinez identifies “Negligence in the Securities” as his first claim for 21 relief in the caption of his FAC; however, there is no section of the FAC dealing with 22 negligence, and Mr. Martinez pleads no facts related to negligence. (Dkt. No. 41, FAC
 23 at p. 1.) The only portion of Mr. Martinez’s FAC that might arguably discuss negligence
 24 is taken verbatim from In re: Robinhood Outage Litigation, which alleges that 25 Robinhood:

26 unlawfully breached its duties by, among other things, failing
 27 to maintain a reliably functioning electronic trading platform 28 with sufficient operating capability and adequate infrastructure to process customer transactions, including during volatile and high-volume trading sessions; by failing to adequately design, test, and monitor its infrastructure necessary to timely process customers' transactions; by failing to provide timely access to trading services during the Outages; by failing to timely process securities trades, including taking orders, entering orders, and executing orders; by failing to keep records of trades (including attempted trades); by failing to provide timely access to customers' accounts, securities and funds.

Consolidated Class Action Complaint at 34, In re Robinhood Outage Litigation, Case No. 3:20-cv-01626-JD (No. 74); (Dkt. No. 41, FAC at p. 7).

Mr. Martinez has never raised issues concerning access to Robinhood's systems or "Outages"; in fact, the "Outages" alleged in the Robinhood Outage Litigation occurred during the time when Mr. Martinez claims that he "quickly gained momentum and had instant GAINS on securities purchased and on trades purchased using defendant robin hoods platform" (Dkt. No. 41, FAC at p. 5.) Therefore, the first claim for relief is not plausible on its face, fails to state facts sufficient to form the basis for a valid cause of action, and should be dismissed.

2. Second Claim for Relief – Misrepresentation & Omissions

Mr. Martinez alleges that "Robinhood Crypto LLC & Robinhood Securities LLC . . . violated federal securities law by means of misrepresentation, omissions, & false information with their 'Ultimate Authority' over the statements content & formulation through the means of another person." (Dkt. No. 41, FAC at p. 3.) Mr. Martinez does not identify any specific "misrepresentation, omission, [or] false information," nor does he explain what he means by "Ultimate Authority." He does not identify any fraudulent statements, the speaker, where and when the statements were made, or explain why the statements were fraudulent.

Further, Mr. Martinez alleges that "he did not consent to certain acts and practices," without identifying any "acts" or "practices." (Dkt. No. 41, FAC at p. 3.) Similarly, Mr. Martinez claims that Robinhood "executes transactions within accounts when not specifically requested by plaintiff,” without identifying any instances of wrongful conduct, let alone conduct directed at Mr. Martinez. (Dkt. No. 41, FAC at p. 4.) Any allegations conceivably related to Mr. Martinez’s claim for “misrepresentations & omissions” are wholly conclusory and the FAC fails to plead sufficient facts to support a plausible claim for relief. Therefore, the second claim for relief should be dismissed.

3. Third Claim for Relief – Breach of Fiduciary Duty

Mr. Martinez alleges that Robinhood breached a fiduciary duty owed to him, despite his account being self-directed. (Dkt. No. 41, FAC at pp. 6, 8.) Further, the code section cited by Mr. Martinez concerning fiduciary duty (29 U.S.C. § 1109) applies to “employee benefit plans,” and is, therefore, not applicable to his self-directed, individual trading account. Therefore, the third claim for relief should be dismissed for “lack of a cognizable legal theory.” See Balistreri v. Pacifica Police Dept., 901 F.2d 696, 699 (9th Cir. 1988).

4. Fourth Claim for Relief – Account Churning

Mr. Martinez alleges that Robinhood engaged in “Account Churning,” despite his account being self-directed and commission-free. (Dkt. No. 41, FAC at pp. 6, 8.) Further, although Mr. Martinez listed “Account Churning” in the caption page, there is no discussion of account churning in the body of the FAC. The only reference to “churning” is located under “unfair enrichment” and alleges that “Robinhood was unjustly enriched at the expense of the Plaintiff and is not legally or equitably entitled to retain any of the benefits, compensation or profits it realized this constitutes Account Churning.” (Dkt. No. 41, FAC at p. 8.)

“Churning” is defined as “excessive trading of assets in a client’s brokerage account in order to generate commissions.”⁴ Mr. Martinez acknowledges that

⁴ Adam Hayes, Churning, Investopedia, <https://www.investopedia.com/terms/c/churning.asp#:~:text=Churning%20is%20exces>

Robinhood “is a Brokerage firm that facilitates commission-free trades of stock” (Dkt. No. 41, FAC at p. 3); therefore, because Robinhood does not charge commissions and because Mr. Martinez’s account was entirely self-directed, it is not possible for Robinhood to engage in account churning, and the fourth cause of action should be dismissed.

5. Fifth Claim for Relief – Unjust Enrichment

Mr. Martinez alleges that, “[s]ince Robinhood’s profits, benefits, and other compensation were obtained by improper means, Robinhood was unjustly enriched” (Dkt. No. 41, FAC at p. 8.) However, Mr. Martinez does not identify how or what improper means Robinhood used to profit, benefit, or derive compensation from Mr. Martinez. This statement is entirely conclusory, cannot form the basis for a valid claim, and should be dismissed.

6. Sixth Claim for Relief – Engaging in Self-Dealing Transactions

The term “self-dealing transaction” is not used in the body of Mr. Martinez’s FAC. Presumably in support of this claim, Mr. Martinez alleges that Robinhood engaged in “insider trading without David’s consent” and that it “further proves & demonstrate caused losses to capital contributed and as innocent.” (Dkt. No. 41, FAC at p. 7.)

Insider trading involves “purchasing or selling a security while in possession of material, nonpublic information.” See, e.g., 15 U.S.C. §78t-1 (liability to contemporaneous traders for insider trading). Mr. Martinez alleges no facts related to insider trading and appears to suggest that insider trading would be permissible if he gave Robinhood permission. Therefore, the sixth claim for relief should be dismissed.

v. ALTERNATIVELY, THE COURT SHOULD COMPEL PLAINTIFF TO ARBITRATE HIS CLAIMS

In connection with opening his account with Robinhood, Mr. Martinez agreed to the Robinhood Securities Customer Agreement and Robinhood Crypto Customer Agreement. (Kincaid Decl. ¶¶ 4, 5; Exs. 2, 3.) Both agreements contain pre-dispute arbitration clauses. (Kincaid Decl., Ex. 2 § 39; Ex. 3 § 16.)

A. The FAA Requires Mr. Martinez to Arbitrate his Claims Against Robinhood

The Federal Arbitration Act, 9 U.S.C. §§ 1-16, applies to a written arbitration agreement in “a contract evidencing a transaction involving commerce.” 9 U.S.C. § 2. “The principal purpose of the FAA is to ensure that private arbitration agreements are enforced according to their terms.” AT&T Mobility LLC v. Concepcion, 563 U.S. 333, 344 (2011) (internal quotations and citations omitted). A party “aggrieved by the alleged failure, neglect, or refusal of another to arbitrate” may bring a motion to compel arbitration in a federal district court. 9 U.S.C. § 4. The Court’s role under the FAA is limited to determining “two ‘gateway’ issues: (1) whether there is an agreement to arbitrate between the parties; and (2) whether the agreement covers the dispute.” Brennan v. Opus Bank, 796 F.3d 1125, 1130 (9th Cir. 2015) (citing Howsam v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc., 537 U.S. 79, 84 (2002); see also Cox v. Ocean View Hotel Corp., 533 F.3d 1114, 1119 (9th Cir. 2008) (citing Chiron Corp. v. Ortho Diagnostic Systems, Inc., 207 F.3d 1126, 1130 (9th Cir. 2000)).

If a valid arbitration agreement exists covering the dispute, a district court must compel arbitration. Lifescan, Inc. v. Premier Diabetic Services, Inc., 363 F.3d 1010, 1012 (9th Cir. 2004); see also Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. v. Byrd, 470 U.S. 213, 218 (1985) (“By its terms, the [FAA] leaves no place for the exercise of discretion by a district court, but instead mandates that district courts shall direct the parties to proceed to arbitration on issues as to which an arbitration agreement has been signed”).

1 Section 2 of the FAA reflects both “a liberal federal policy favoring
2 arbitration, and the fundamental principle that arbitration is a matter of contract[.]”
3 Concepcion, 563 U.S. at 339 (internal quotations and citations omitted). Consistent with 4 these principles, “courts must place arbitration agreements on an equal footing with other 5 contracts, and enforce them according to their terms.” Id. (internal quotations and 6 citations omitted). However, Section 2 provides that written agreements to arbitrate
7 disputes arising out of transactions involving interstate commerce “shall be valid,
8 irrevocable, and enforceable, save upon such grounds as exist at law or in equity for the 9 revocation of any contract.” 9 U.S.C. § 2.

10 Courts may consider evidence beyond the complaint when determining a 11 motion to compel arbitration. *Guadagno v. E*Trade Bank*, 592 F. Supp. 2d 1263, 1266-12 69 (C.D. Cal. 2008) (examining declarations and exhibits in determining a motion to 13 compel arbitration). The party seeking to compel arbitration must prove the existence
14 of an agreement to arbitrate by a preponderance of the evidence. Knutson v. Sirius XM
15 Radio Inc., 771 F.3d 559, 565 (9th Cir. 2014). In these proceedings, “the trial court sits
16 as a trier of fact, weighing all the affidavits, declarations, and other documentary
17 evidence, as well as oral testimony received at the court’s discretion, to reach a final 18 determination.” Bruni v. Didion, 160 Cal. App. 4th 1272, 1282 (2008).

19 B. California Law Similarly Requires Mr. Martinez to Arbitrate his Claims
20 Against Robinhood⁵

21 The CAA states that a court shall order a matter to arbitration if it
22 determines that an enforceable arbitration agreement exists. Cal. Civ. Proc.
23 Code § 1281.2. California has a strong public policy in favor of arbitration and any 24 doubts regarding the arbitrability of a dispute are resolved in favor of arbitration.
25 Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Services, Inc., 24 Cal. 4th 83, 97 (2000)

26
27 ⁵ The Customer Agreements contain California choice of law provisions.
28 Although the arbitration clause is governed by the FAA because the subject matter involves commerce, Robinhood includes CAA analysis out of an abundance of caution.

(“California law, like federal law, favors enforcement of valid arbitration agreements.”); Christensen v. Dewor Developments, 33 Cal. 3d 778, 782 (1983) (the court should indulge every intendment to give effect to an arbitration agreement). As the Supreme Court of California has noted, “. . . the decision to arbitrate grievances evinces the parties’ intent to bypass the judicial system and thus avoid potential delays at the trial and appellate levels” Moncharsh v. Heily & Blase, 3 Cal. 4th 1, 10 (1992). This strong policy has resulted in the general rule that arbitration agreements should be enforced “unless it can be said with assurance that an arbitration clause is not susceptible to an interpretation covering the asserted dispute.” Coast Plaza Doctors Hospital v. Blue Cross of California, 83 Cal. App. 4th 677, 686 (2000); see also Segal v. Silberstein, 156 Cal. App. 4th 627, 633 (2007) (applying California’s strong public policy favoring arbitration, courts will enforce an agreement to arbitrate unless it can be said “with assurance that an arbitration clause cannot reasonably be interpreted to cover a dispute or otherwise cannot be enforced.”). Thus, regardless of whether the FAA or CAA governs, Mr. Martinez’s claims against Robinhood should be compelled to arbitration.

C. The Arbitration Clause Encompasses the Dispute at Issue

“Any doubts concerning the scope of arbitrable issues should be resolved in favor of arbitration.” Moses H. Cone Memorial Hospital v. Mercury Construction Corp., 460 U.S. 1, 24-25 (1983). However, “arbitration is a matter of contract and a party cannot be required to submit to arbitration any dispute which he has not agreed to submit.” AT&T Technologies, Inc. v. Communications Workers of America, 475 U.S. 643, 648 (1986) (quoting United Steelworkers of America v. Warrior & Gulf Navigation Co., 363 U.S. 574, 582 (1960)).

The Robinhood Financial LLC & Robinhood Securities, LLC Customer Agreement’s arbitration clause encompasses “any controversy or claim arising out of or relating to this Agreement, any other agreement between you and Robinhood, any Account established hereunder, [and] any transaction therein” (Kincaid Decl., Ex. 2 § 39). The Robinhood Crypto Customer Agreement’s arbitration clause encompasses “any dispute arising in connection with this Agreement, my [Robinhood Crypto] Account, or the [Robinhood Crypto] services. . . .” (Kincaid Decl., Ex. 3 § 16.) Given the broad scope of these arbitration agreements, any dispute between Mr. Martinez and Robinhood is required to be brought in arbitration.

D. Mr. Martinez Has Refused to Arbitrate

Robinhood has demanded that Mr. Martinez submit his claims to arbitration pursuant to the arbitration clauses described herein. (Aref Decl. ¶ 2.) Mr. Martinez refused to voluntarily submit this dispute to arbitration and instructed Robinhood to seek relief from the Court. (Aref Decl. ¶ 3.)

E. This Action Should Be Stayed Pending Arbitration

The Ninth Circuit has held that “a district court may either stay the action or dismiss it outright when, as here, the court determines that all of the claims raised in the action are subject to arbitration.” Johnmohammadi v. Bloomingdale’s Inc., 755 F.3d 1072, 1074 (9th Cir. 2014). There is a strong “preference for staying an action pending arbitration rather than dismissing it.” MediVas, LLC v. Marubeni Corp., 741 F.3d 4, 9 (9th Cir. 2014). Both the CAA and FAA would require that these proceedings be stayed pending arbitration. The FAA provides, in relevant part, that:

If any suit or proceeding be brought in any of the courts of the United States upon any issue referable to arbitration under an agreement in writing for such arbitration, the court in which such suit is pending, upon being satisfied that the issue involved in such suit or proceeding is referable to arbitration under such an agreement, shall on application of one of the parties stay the trial of the action until such arbitration has been had in accordance with the terms of the agreement, providing the applicant for the stay is not in default in proceeding with such arbitration.

9 U.S.C. § 3. The CAA mirrors the FAA; a court must “stay the action or proceeding until the application for an order to arbitrate is determined and, if arbitration of such

1 controversy is ordered, until an arbitration is had in accordance with the order to arbitrate
2 or until such earlier time as the court specifies.” Cal. Civ. Proc. Code § 1281.4.

3 Because Mr. Martinez’s claims against Robinhood must be arbitrated, this 4 action should be stayed pending completion of the arbitration proceedings. Therefore,
5 Robinhood respectfully requests that, should the Court determine not to dismiss the case,
6 the Court stay the instant proceedings until the arbitration has been completed.

7 VI. CONCLUSION

8 For at least the foregoing reasons, Robinhood requests that the Court
9 formally recognize the termination of Five Star as a plaintiff, and either dismiss the FAC
10 of Mr. Martinez in its entirety or compel this action to arbitration and stay these 11 proceedings pending arbitration.
